

This is the most logical proposal for the restructuring of amatuer radio license classes. If morse code was as valuable as some would have us believe the United States would have retained its use within its military.